Under Their Auto.

Three Columbus men are held in the Pickaway-co jail after a triple wreck on the Darbyville-rd between South Bloomfield and the Jackson pike about 3 a. m. Sunday in which three persons were injured and a man became mysteriously missing.

The men, brought to jail after being subdued in a fist fight in which Sheriff Frank Davis broke two bones in his right hand, are registered as:

Warren Fluke, 29, of 3589 E. Eleventh-ave, Columbus, an employee of the Ralston Steel Car Co.

Ralph Chrysler, 32, E. Seventh-ave, Columbus, also a Ralston employee.

Ervel Chrysler, 23, of 3658 E. Eleventh-ave, Columbus, employed at the Columbus Auto Parts Co.

GIRLS ARE INJURED

Two Columbus girls were injured when their Ford roadster was forced off the road by an auto, which did not stop and which is believed by Sheriff Davis to be that in which the three Columbus men were riding.

The girls, who were pinned under their auto for an hour before they were rescued by a passing motorist, are:

Daisy Franks, 24, 1904 S. Third-st, Columbus, a sister of Mrs. Homer Gladell, of Circleville. She suffered the severe laceration of her right foot.

Betty Finney, 24, 17 Hawkes-ave, Columbus, who suffered a cut on her face and bruises.

MAN IS MISSING

The missing man is the driver of the Buick roadster into which the auto of the arrested trio is said to have collided after allegedly forcing the Ford of the two girls of the road. Another search of the vicinity of the wreck for traces of the man was to be conducted Monday by Sheriff Davis.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Porter and the Clifton garage were notified early Sunday morning that two girls were pinned under an auto west of South Bloomfield. Going to the scene of the wreck, they learned that a passing motorist had extricated the girls from the wreckage and had taken them to the office of Dr. L. C. Schiff, Ashville, where their injuries were dressed. A dozen stitches were required to close the wounds on Miss Franks' foot. The motorist, whose name has not been learned, took the two girls to their homes in Columbus. The girls said they were on their way home from a dance at Chillicothe when forced

OCEAN FLYERS ARE IN PARIS

Yellow Bird, Crew and Stow-away Receive Ovation At French Capital.

PARIS, June 17—Like a proud but weary eagle, the trans-Atlantic monoplane Yellow Bird rested at the Le Bourget flying field today while hundreds sought to catch a glimpse of the plane which crossed the ocean from Old Orchard, Me., but failed by 500 miles to reach this city because of lack of fuel.

Meanwhile Jean Assolant, Rene LeFevre and Armeno Lotti, Jr., the first Frenchmen to successfully fly across the Atlantic were being lionized as heroes by their admiring countrymen.

Arthur Schreiber, the 22-year-old Portland uninvited guest who also made the flight, was also the cynosure of all eyes but not quite as a hero.

When the plane landed here at 8:45 P. M. last night after its flight from Comillas Beach, Spain, which was broken up by two landings for fuel enroute. Schreiber at least felt some of the glory of a hero. He was lifted into the air by the shoulders of those awaiting the plane cheered loudly for his audacity, although mingled with the cheers were some very significant hoots.

Four Cars Badly Damaged—Victims Escape Without Serious Injuries.

Eight persons were injured in automobile accidents which happened Sunday near Circleville to four automobiles. These were later taken to the Circleville Motors Co. garage and stood there Monday as evidence that several persons miraculously escaped with their lives.

One Chevrolet, owned and driven by Assistant Surveyor Atwood Jones of Ross-co, collided with another car from New California, O., at Fox P. O. and turned over three times according to witnesses.

The disc wheels of the Chevrolet were bent double, all of the glass was broken, the doors sprung, the top bent and the back axle broken. Great jagged pieces of glass in the windshield were smeared with blood, and on one broken point there was still hanging Monday a small piece of flesh that had been gouged out of the ankle of Miss Levia Willis, of Richmondale, O. She was a passenger in the Chevrolet.

There were two girls and three men in the Jones car, and the other girl suffered a gash on the back of her head. Miss Willis was taken into the home of Wayne Hoover, where Dr. Lloyd Jones was called to attend her.

BROTHERS IN JAIL

Walter L. Colvin, 27, and William Brown, 25, half brothers were arrested at Clarksville Sunday morning by Deputy Sheriffs Carl Porter and Miller Fessell on charges of drunkenness. They will be arraigned before Probate Judge E. A. Brown.

PANTS BUTTON HELD AS CLUE INTO MYSTERY

Safety Deposit Box Key Is Also Found Near Scene of Girl's Murder.

COLUMBUS, O., June 17—An order granting counsel for Dr. James H. Snook, Ohio State university professor, held for investigation in connection with the murder of Miss Theora Hix, 24-year-old medical student at the university permission to confer privately with Snook was issued today by Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds.

The order was issued in response to an application, filed by Attorneys E. O. Ricketts and John F. Seidel, Columbus, as counsel for Snook, for a mandatory injunction to restrain County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Sheriff Harry T. Paul and Chief of Police Harry French from interfering with private consultation between Snook and his attorneys.

In their application, Snook's counsel declared that Chester, Paul and French had refused to permit them to confer with Snook since June 15.

PANTS BUTTON CLUE
A pants button may be the means by which the murder may be solved.

Larry Van Skaik, one of the detectives working on the case, found the button at the scene of the murder—a local rifle range today.

If the trousers from which the button was pulled off can be located, the owner of the garment will likely be charged with murder.

Detective Van Skaik also found a safety-deposit-box key at the spot where Miss Hix was brutally battered to death last Thursday night.

GRILLED AGAIN
Dr. Snook and Marion T. Meyers who have been under arrest for investigation in connection with the slaying since Saturday morning, were subjected to another intensified grilling by detectives today.

Among other things picked up today at the scene of the grievous slaying was a safety-deposit-box key—numbered 2837. An attempt is being made to local financial institutions to ascertain the box to which the key belongs.

Keys figure prominently in the investigation. The one-room "love nest" apartment where the married Dr. Snook admits he spent part of his time with Miss Hix as husband and wife rented last February by the educator, was given up by him the day following the identification of the murdered girl. Snook turned over to the landlady two keys to the apartment.

Detectives are probing to learn whether the key Miss Hix had is missing from her effects.

STAINS ARE FOUND
Both of the men being held for investigation, admit having intimately known the dead co-ed. Meyers, who says he is now engaged to another young woman, informed police he previously asked Miss Hix to marry him.

City detectives who examined the automobile of Snook, declared this morning that they found stains resembling blood in the professor's coupe.

A hammer, a stained cap, glove, woman's umbrella and a harpin were previously found in Snook's machine and form a part of the circumstantial evidence which has been woven about the educator.

ENGAGED PAIR GO OVER DAM AT COLUMBUS

Emerson D. Wright and Dorothy Bittzer Victims of Boating Tragedy.

A young man and his fiancée, both of Pickaway-twp, Pickaway-co, were swept to their deaths over the Griggs Dam, seven miles north of Columbus on the Scioto river Sunday evening, when the row boat in which they were riding with two companions was caught in the mad current of the spillway and was hurled over the brink of the dam and down 65 feet to the turbulent waters and rocks below.

The dead are:
Emerson D. Wright, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright of near Haysville, Pickaway-co.

Miss Dorothy Bittzer, 24, his fiancée, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bittzer, who resides on the farm adjoining that of Mr. and Mrs. Wright.

Miss Lola Geer, 21, of 157E Thomas-ave Columbus and Morris Bostic, 23, of 1683 W. Third-ave, their companions, escaped death by clinging to the sides of the row boat.

BELOW DANGER LINE
The gay lark on the placid waters of the lake above Griggs Dam changed swiftly to tragedy when the boat, equipped with an out-board motor, went below the "danger mark" cable which floats on buoys 100 feet above the dam.

It is believed the occupants of the boat raised the cable to permit the boat to pass under it. Inside the danger zone, the craft was caught in the swift current of this spillway waters, carried to the brink of the dam and then hurled outward and downward into the rocky and turbulent pool at the foot below.

Wright and Miss Bittzer were thrown clear of the boat to which Miss Geer and Bostic clung, until they were rescued by Henry Fink and William Sutton, boat line operators.

SEEKS HIS FIANCEE
Wright, an expert swimmer, was seen by horrified and helpless spectators to battle against the frothing waters, apparently looking for his fiancée, until he became exhausted and sank to his death. Miss Bittzer is believed to have been knocked unconscious when her head struck a rock at the bottom of the pool. Her body was not seen until it and that of Wright were recovered a half hour later by Columbus police and firemen.

When the bodies were recovered, Charles P. Garrish, keeper of the dam, tried to revive them. Charles Norris, John Guy, Ralph Paul and John Crumley, attaches of the sheriff's office, also tried unsuccessfully to revive them with a pulmotor. Wrist watches of both Wright and Miss Bittzer had stopped at exactly at 9:43 p. m.

WORKED IN COLUMBUS
Miss Geer and Bostic were taken to Bostic's home. The body of Wright was placed in charge of the Shaw-Davis Co., and that of Miss Bittzer was taken to the Willey-Shroyer funeral home.

Wright was employed by Ex-congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, and Miss Bittzer was a telephone operator in the Randolph exchange, Columbus. Both had rooms at the home of Samuel W. Jones, 104 S. Princeton-ave.

Miss Bittzer is survived by her parents; three brothers, William and Francis Bittzer, of Haysville and Nolan Bittzer, of Kingston; and three sisters: Bertha and Florence at home and Marie, Columbus.

Wright is survived by his parents; a sister, Ruth Wright, at home; three brothers, Julius of Haysville and Henry and George of near Circleville.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

GRILLED AGAIN

Dr. Snook and Marion T. Meyers who have been under arrest for investigation in connection with the slaying since Saturday morning, were subjected to another intensified grilling by detectives today.

Among other things picked up today at the scene of the gruesome slaying was a safety-deposit-box key—numbered 2837. An attempt is being made to local financial institutions to ascertain the box to which the key belongs.

Keys figure prominently in the investigation.

The one-room "love nest" apartment where the married Dr. Snook admits he spent part of his time with Miss Hix as husband and wife rented last February by the educator, was given up by him the day following the identification of the murdered girl. Snook turned over to the landlady two keys to the apartment.

Detectives are probing to learn whether the key Miss Hix had is missing from her effects.

STAINS ARE FOUND

Both of the men being held for investigation, admit having intoxicated known the dead co-ed. Meyers, who says he is now engaged to another young woman, informed police he previously asked Miss Hix to marry him.

City detectives, who examined the automobile of Snook, declared this morning that they found stains resembling blood in the professor's coupe.

A hammer, a stained cap, glove, woman's umbrella and a hairpin were previously found in Snook's machine and form a part of the circumstantial evidence which has been woven about the educator.

EIGHT DIE, SCORES INJURED IN QUAKE

WELLINGTON, N. Z., June 17—Eight persons are known to be dead and scores injured as the result of an earthquake which rocked a large portion of New Zealand today.

The cities of Christchurch, Nelson, Westport and Coalport were chiefly affected by the tremor, and the population of this city fled from their homes in terror when the quake came.

'She Left Him Flat

With a merry ta-ta, Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan left her whoopee-making hubby languishing in a French jail. The grandson of the late New York financier, Thomas Fortune Ryan, doesn't have access to his money, but what difference does that make. He plastered Paris with rubber checks for which some angry cafe proprietors put him in jail. Wife paid the bills but wouldn't wait for his release.

HORSES BOLT; FARMER HURT

Henry Mellon Injured When Frightened Team Runs
Away Saturday.

Henry Mellon, farm hand, suffered a broken collarbone Saturday at noon when a team of horses that he was unhitching from a plow, became frightened and ran off. The accident happened at the residence of George Seymour on the H. M. Crites farm, three miles west of town on the Darbyville-pk.

Mellon, who had been plowing, was unhitching for dinner. The accident is said to have happened when he thought the horses were free from the plow, and he started to lead them away. They became frightened at the loose plow bouncing behind them, and ran, dragging Mellon for a short distance.

Members of the Seymour household ran to his assistance and brought him at once to Circleville where his injuries were attended by Dr. D. V. Courtright. He was resting comfortably Monday, but he was considerably bruised in addition to the shoulder injury.

TRIANGULAR FIGHT RESULTS IN ARREST

When a husband is said to have objected to his wife being in the company with another man at the Gem restaurant on E. Main-st at 1:30 a. m. Monday, a fight started which resulted in the arrest of the three angles to the triangle.

Officers Fitzpatrick and Sealls arrested Mr. and Mrs. Burnell Reynolds, the former of Circleville and the latter of Kingston, and Lorna Angus, of Chillicothe. Mrs. Reynolds and Angus were later released on $25 bond each. The trio is scheduled to have a hearing at 7:30 p. m. Monday before Mayor B. T. Hedges.

Emerson D. Wright and Dorothy Bitzer Victims of Boating Tragedy.

A young man and his fiancée, both of Pickaway-twp, Pickaway-co, were swept to their deaths over the Griggs Dam, seven miles north of Columbus on the Scioto river Sunday evening, when the row boat in which they were riding with two companions was caught in the mad current of the spillway and was hurled over the brink of the dam and down 65 feet to the turbulent waters and rocks below.

The dead are:
Emerson D. Wright, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright of near Haysville, Pickaway-co.

Miss Dorothy Bitzer, 24, his fiancée, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bitzer, who resides on the farm adjoining that of Mr. and Mrs. Wright.

Miss Lola Geer, 21, of 1572 Thomas-ave Columbus and Morris Bostic, 23, of 1683 W. Third-ave, their companions, escaped death by clinging to the sides of the row-boat.

BELOW DANGER LINE

The gay lark on the placid waters of the lake above Griggs Dam changed swiftly to tragedy when the boat, equipped with an out-board motor, went below the "danger mark" cable which floats on buoys 100 feet above the dam.

It is believed the occupants of the boat raised the cable to permit the boat to pass under it. Inside the danger zone, the craft was caught in the swift current of the spillway waters, carried to the brink of the dam and then hurled outward and downward into the rocky and turbulent pool 65 feet below.

Wright and Miss Bitzer were thrown clear of the boat to which Miss Geer and Bostic clung, until they were rescued by Henry Fink and William Sutton, boat line operators.

SEEKS HIS FIANCEE

Wright, an expert swimmer, was seen by horrified and helpless spectators to battle against the frothing waters, apparently looking for his fiancée, until he became exhausted and sank to his death. Miss Bitzer is believed to have been knocked unconscious when her head struck a rock at the bottom of the pool. Her body was not seen until it and that of Wright were recovered a half hour later by Columbus police and firemen.

When the bodies were recovered, Charles P. Garrish, keeper of the dam, tried to revive them. Charles Norris, John Guy, Ralph Paul and John Crumley, attaches of the sheriff's office, also tried unsuccessfully to revive them with a pulmotor. Wrist watches of both Wright and Miss Bitzer had stopped at exactly at 9:43 p. m.

WORKED IN COLUMBUS

Miss Geer and Bostic were taken to Bostic's home. The body of Wright was placed in charge of the Shaw-Davis Co., and that of Miss Bitzer was taken to the Wiley-Shroyer funeral home.

Wright was employed by Ex-congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, and Miss Bitzer was a telephone operator in the Randolph exchange, Columbus. Both had rooms at the home of Samuel W. Jones, 104 S. Princeton-ave.

Miss Bitzer is survived by her parents; three brothers, William and Francis Bitzer, of Haysville and Nolan Bitzer, of Kingston; and three sisters; Bertha and Florence at home and Marie, Columbus.

Wright is survived by his parents; a sister, Ruth Wright, at home; three brothers, Julius of Haysville and Henry and George of near Circleville.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

FACES CHARGE OF ASSAULT ON YOUTH

Cliff Haddock, who resides on the second Crites farm south of Circleville, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell at 11 p. m. Sunday on charges of drunkenness and assault. It is said that Haddock walked up to George W. Brown, Western Union messenger boy, at the Scioto Valley traction station and struck the youth. He will be given a hearing before Probate Judge E. A. Brown.

FREE TEAMS HE FOR LEAD OF NATIONALS

St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Chicago On Top—Giants Are Close Behind.

NEW YORK, June 17.—St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Chicago are practically deadlocked for the lead in the National League race this morning, and the fourth place Giants are charged with only one more defeat than the pace-setting Cardinals, you couldn't get a much more exciting scramble by dropping a two-bit piece on the bower.

The Giants, who usually have to play a lone hand in intersectional battles, received unexpected help from the three weaker eastern outfits—Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston—on the western trip just concluded. Sporadic outbursts on the part of the latter trio halted the march of the three western leaders, as was the case yesterday, for example, when the lowly Braves knocked off the Cardinals twice, 9 to 8 and 6 to 5, and the Phillies handed the Cubs a 7 to 2 shellacking.

The Cardinals rallied desperately in the ninth inning of each encounter, but the Braves just managed to check each uprising in time.

Ray Benge of the Phillies struck out 13 batters and yielded only five hits in beating the Cubs.

GRIMES IS BEATEN
Burleigh Grimes, mound ace of the Pirates, was beaten by the tailend Cincinnati team, 8 to 1, after the Bucs had won the first game of the double bill by an 8 to 3 count. Grimes had won ten games without a loss, but was no match for Pete Donohue yesterday.

The Giants kept up their terrific slugging by manhandling the Brooklyn Robins, 11 to 4. Lindstrom had a perfect day at bat with two homers and a pair of singles, and Mel Ott smacked his 14th homer.

The Athletics' winning streak of six straight victories was shattered when they lost a ding-dong slugfest to Cleveland, 10 to 9. Charlie Jamieson saved the game with a hiving catch of Bishop's liner in the ninth.

MEUSEL CELEBRATES
Celebrating his return to the line-up with a home run and a single, Bob Meusel helped the Yankees tame the Tigers, 11 to 7. Detroit knocked Pennock and Moore out of the box. New York won the series, three out of four. Four hits by Heinie Manush and the pitching of Kimsey, a Rookie, featured the Browns' 5 to 2 win over the Red Sox.

Firpo Marberry won another game for Washington, besting Ted Lyons of the White Sox by 5 to 3 score.

Weaving Long Practiced

I WAS DENIED HEALTH; THEN KONJOLA WON'

Former Sufferer Freed From Stomach Trouble Praises New Medicine.

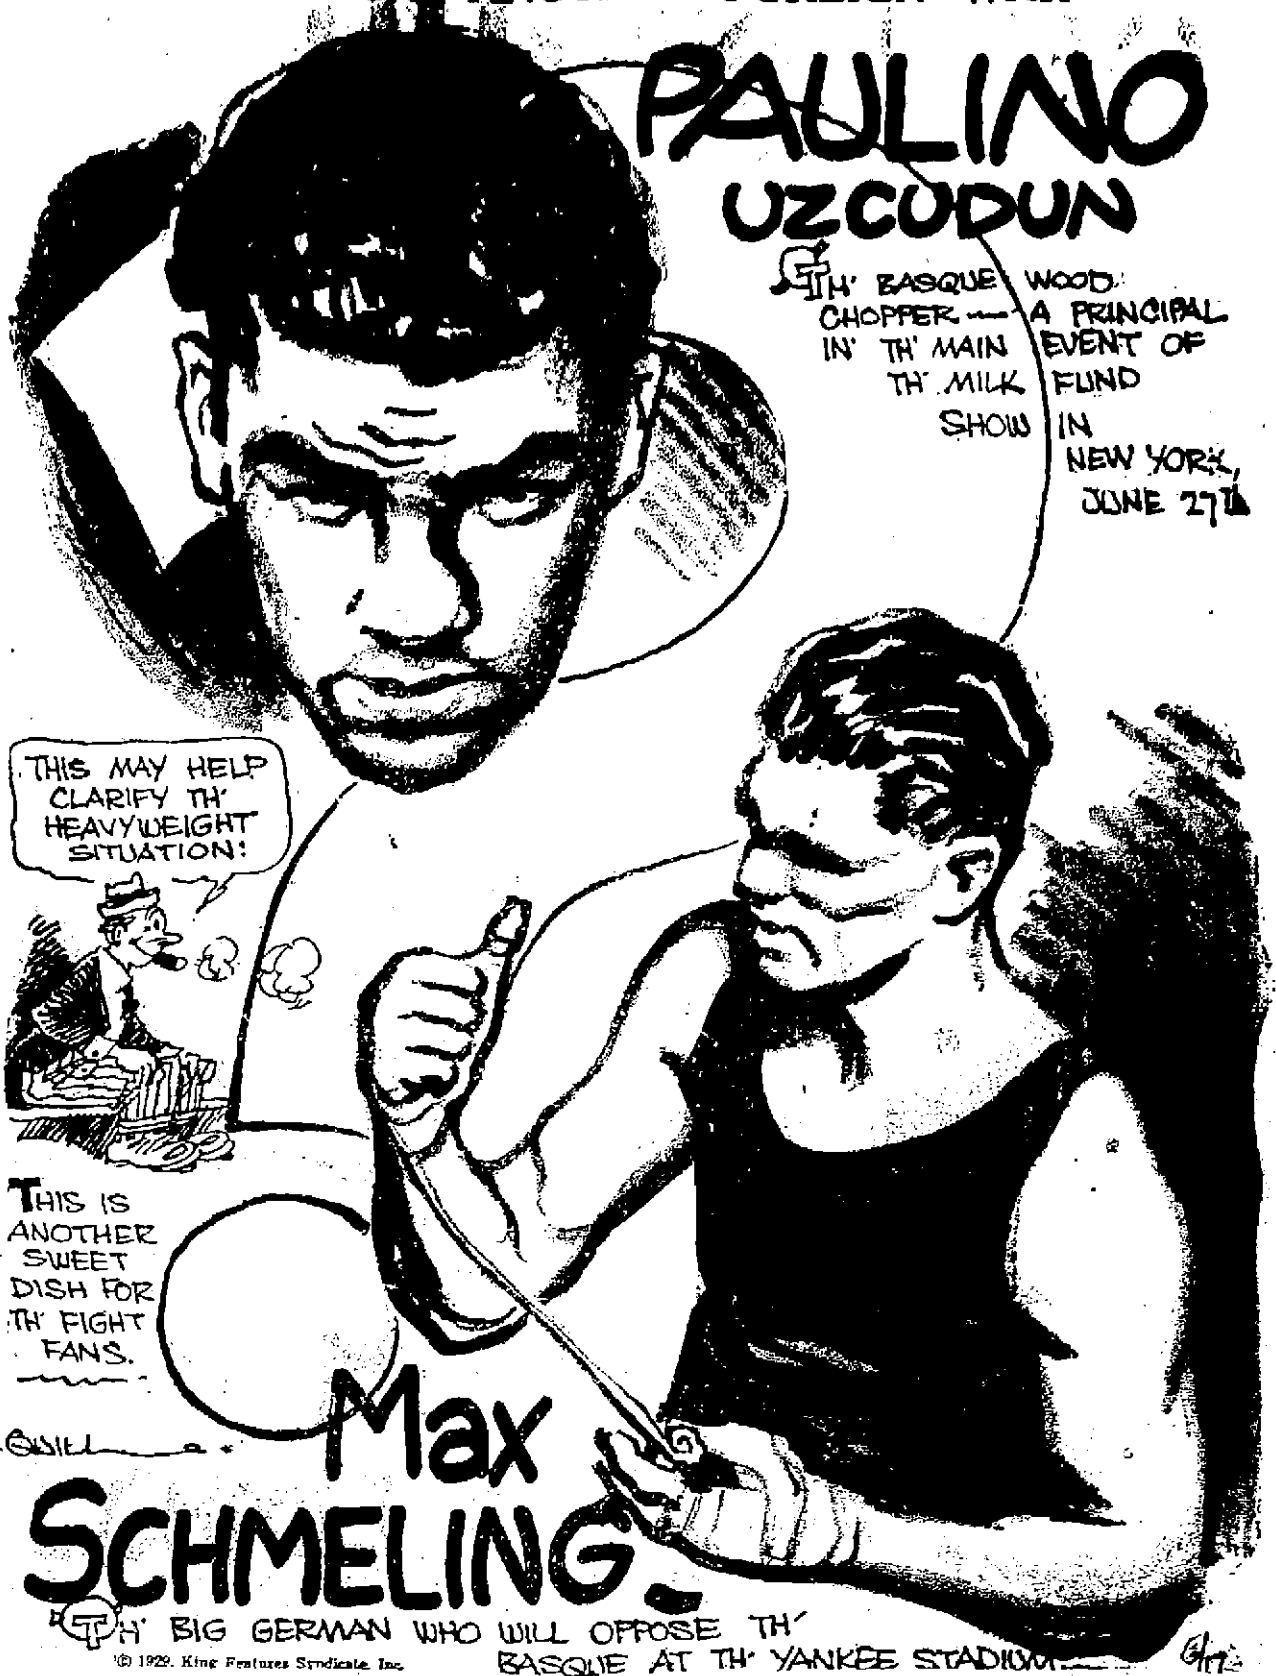

MR. IGNAC SCHUSTER.

"I was denied health for several years, but Konjola won a splendid victory," said Mr. Ignac Schuster, Struthers, O. "My stomach and liver were out of order. I dreaded meal time, for I knew suffering was bound to follow. Sound sleep was denied me, and I felt bilious and lacked strength and energy.

"It was a lucky day for me when I started with Konjola. My health improved immediately. Indigestion ceased, my appetite returned, and my stomach and liver were corrected. I am never bothered by biliousness, and have gained in weight and strength. I feel like a new man. I owe all this new health to Konjola, and endorse it highly."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

New Braves' Boss?

Judge Emil Fuchs, owner and self-appointed manager of the Boston Braves, started the season like a whirlwind, but of late has not won many games. Bert Nicholls, above, coach of the New York Giants, will probably take over the managing job very shortly since the judge is going to retire to concentrate on owning the team.

The origin of the word "bankrupt" is traced back to ancient times. A Hebrew custom required the deposit in the temple of certain sums of money in Hebrew currency. As Roman coins were frequently used, money changers set up their tables or benches (bank) on which they kept Hebrew coins to which they added Roman money. Money was also lent, and sometimes the changer found himself owing more than he owned. To prevent further calamity his creditors drove him from his business and broke his bench to pieces. He was then "bench broken" or bankrupt.

Ample Provision for Education of Sailors

Dr. Frank Crane, writer, after an inspection of one of the dreadnoughts of the United States navy, said: "I recently had a very illuminating visit aboard the battleship Tennessee. It was illuminating because I found it not only a fighting machine, but a schoolhouse. In this age of modern efficient methods it is only natural that a wise government provides means to insure the highest type of personnel. Why not? A battleship is perhaps the most perfect laboratory in the world. All its machinery must be the best of its kind and to maintain the high standard the United States navy has set, it is necessary that the personnel be highly trained. Education proved to be a deciding factor and to further their policy the navy department has provided enlisted men with a correspondence course system that is perhaps the most completely organized project of its kind in use. It is comprised of 128 courses, prepared by the leading universities of America. A program of personal supervision by naval academy graduates and competent instructors insures a thorough knowledge of the subject undertaken."

YANKEES WILL BE DISBANDED

Manager Huggins Announces He Will Have New Team For Next Season.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Win or lose, the New York Yankees, three time champions and one of the ranking ball clubs of all time, will be dismantled at the end of the 1929 season.

Miller Huggins, their manager, made this statement to the writer this morning, four days before the all-decisive series with the Athletics, a series calling for five games within a period of seventy-two hours. The fate of the 1928-27-28 champions will be determined by these games but, rise or fall, the Yankees, as we have known them, never will be the same again, once the current season is ended. That much is ordained.

"Absolutely," said Huggins with great emphasis. "I'll have a different club on the field next year, regardless of whether they are champions at the time or just a ball club that used to be champions. They have gone far for me but there must be an end to everything and this is about it."

His only hope for the pennant, he admitted, was to win four out of five from the Athletics in the impending series but I gather that this was not so much a hope as a despairing thought. The inference gained was that, even if he did win the series, the gesture might be too late for all practical purposes.

Turkeys Bred by Aztecs
Although the earliest authentic record of the turkey refers to its introduction into Spain in 1524, a French writer says turkeys were first brought to France in 1518. When the Spaniards conquered Mexico they found semi-domesticated turkeys in the zoological parks of the Aztecs, he writes. Among the Pueblo Indians of the Southwest turkeys were raised before the coming of the Spaniards and these fowls had reached about the same degree of domestication that pigeons have today.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Won Astronomical Honors
All the planets except Uranus and Neptune have been known since early times. Uranus was the first planet to be discovered. William Herschel discovered Uranus and was soon afterward made royal astronomer by George III of England and knighted. The eccentricity of the behavior of the new planet led to mathematical calculations deducing the presence of another planet. Several astronomers exchanged data regarding its calculated position, and Galile of the Berlin observatory was the first to see the planet known to the world as Neptune.

May-Day Customs
As far back as the Medieval period in England, Chaucer says, it was customary to go out early on the morning of the first of May "to fetch the flowers fresh." Hawthorne branches were carried home about sunset amid much merry making. The name, the May, was given to the Hawthorne, and the ceremony was called "the bringing home the May." A relic of the Roman custom when on May day the goddess Flora was especially honored is seen in the selection of a beautiful village maid to be crowned as queen of the May.

PLUS FOURS HINDER GAME
THE plus four knickers which have been greatly exaggerated are on their way out. The fad has reached its limit and trousers are getting narrower. There can be but one result and this is better golf. Women golfers have always been handicapped with skirts, especially long skirts, and when they became shorter or almost all their game improved.

Men play better golf in short trousers but when they went to the extreme they were as bad flapping in the wind as a woman's skirt. Baggy trousers are unusually troublesome in putting.

PASSAIC, N. J., COP WINS PYLE'S DERBY

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Winner of C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot race, John Salo, the flying cop from Passaic, N. J., today was richer by $25,000—first prize for the arduous 3,800-mile trek from New York to Los Angeles.

Pete Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, finished in second place, a scant three minutes and 58 seconds behind Salo. This was the unofficial time. He will receive $10,000 for second prize.

The official timers were still checking the elapsed time of the runners today and the figures will not be available until they have finished.

Mary Elizabeth has just started to dancing school and on the occasion of her second or third lesson her mother, sitting by as an interested spectator, was glad to see that she and her boy partner seemed to be holding a conversation. "What were you and Jimmie talking about?" she asked when the little girl joined her after the dance. "Oh, just talking," evaded the youngster. "Well, what did Jimmie say," persisted the mother. "He said, 'Gee, you're a rotten dancer,'" revealed Mary Elizabeth. "Oh!" cried the stricken parent, thinking her daughter would be offended. "What did you say to that, honey?" "I said," replied the child, calmly, "Saw, you're not so good your self."

Shining-eyed and fresh for the hours that count

WHAT man is pleased at the sight of a tired-out wife... too, borne-down with household duties to try to dress, too weary to look her best for his homecoming? The women men adore are shining-eyed and fresh, eager for the hours that count.

More and more women today are finding a way to keep young, ten, twenty, even thirty years longer than their mothers.

The great strides of engineering and electrical science have developed labor-saving devices to relieve women of drudgery. Modern medicinal science is outwitting middle age by revolutionary discoveries in diet and care of the body.

But it is advertising that has aroused women to a realization of what these new household helps can do. It is advertising that has brought a knowledge of beauty aids and their use. It is advertising that has created a desire for those products which aid women to lead healthier, happier, longer lives.

Always read the Advertisements. Keep up with the ever-onward sweep of progress. Do not let yourself be left behind.

Both games are free for all. Come and boost your favorite team.

India was the original source of the diamond as a jewel. For centuries India remained the sole source of Europe's diamond supply. About 1730 diamonds were discovered in Brazil. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in South Africa. South African diamonds constitute more than 90 per cent of the world's supply. From their discovery to the present time they have yielded 90,000,000 carats. The diamonds of the world probably represent a value of $5,000,000,000.

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Washington's Cherry Trees
Mrs. Taft shortly after going into the White House ordered 8,000 Japanese cherry trees to be sent to Washington and planted. She had seen and admired these trees while traveling in the East. A Japanese resident of New York made her a gift of 2,000 of these trees. When they reached America they contained an insect that was injurious to American plants. For that reason they were thrown overboard. The city of Tokyo then gave the United States 3,000 of these trees. The water side around the Speedway and the Tidal basin in Washington have these trees in blossom during the early spring.

Dr. Frank Crane, writer, after an inspection of only the dreadnaughts of the United States navy said: "I recently had a very illuminating visit aboard the battleship Tennessee. It was illuminating because I found it not only a fighting machine, but a schoolhouse. In this age of modern efficient methods it is only natural that a wise government provides means to insure the highest type of personnel. Why not? A battleship is perhaps the most perfect laboratory in the world. All its machinery must be the best of its kind, and to maintain the high standards the United States navy has set, it is necessary that the personnel be highly trained. Education proved to be a deciding factor and to further their policy, the Navy department has provided enlisted sailors with a correspondence course system that is perhaps the most completely organized project of its kind in use. The composition of the navy is prepared by the leading universities of America. A program of personal supervision to train academy graduates and competent instructors insures a thorough knowledge of the subject undertaken."

Whirl of Modern Life Demands More of Women

Wholesome Outdoor Life
Fulfills the Need, Says
Explorer

"TO SAY that the modern girl is not the girl of our grandmother's day is to speak the truth," says Mrs. Carl Akeley, widow of Carl Akeley, famous African explorer, and herself a noted mountain climber and explorer.

"What is more, the girls themselves would not want to be. The new freedom of their sex in the world of business and sport has given rise to many new and difficult problems which modern educators are only just beginning to fathom.

"With this change in their requirements the young and growing girl needs a rugged physique, not necessarily of the muscular type, but built on a solid foundation. This activity of the modern girl has to a great degree replaced the former cultivation of purely social charms which were the 'open sesame' of a generation ago."

No better example can be found than that supplied by the experiences of Mrs. Akeley herself, through which she gained the outdoor knowledge which she is passing on to so many growing girls in her summer camp activities.

At a time when few of the so-called weaker sex were active in the harder phases of the outdoors Mrs. Akeley, then Mary L. Jobe, was carving a niche for herself second to none in mountain climbing and exploration throughout the rugged peaks in the Canadian Rockies of British Columbia. She went "north of fifty-three" to study the Gitkan and Carrier Indians in their primitive villages. On one trip, exploring Mt. Sir Alexander, Mrs. Akeley packed her own outfit over 12 high passes ranging from 5,000 to 8,000 feet elevation, experiencing temperatures as low as 60 degrees below zero.

She has proved conclusively that even under unusual circumstances physical well-being out-of-doors can be assured if proper intelligence and experience are used.

Her early outdoor work and training stood her in good stead during the 1926-27 African Hall expedition with her husband, Carl Akeley, in Kenya and the grafs country of Northern Frontier; in the lion country of Tanganyika, and in the gorilla sanctuary of the Kivu. When Mr. Akeley died of fever in the heart of the Belgian Congo she found herself burdened with the responsibility of completing the work undertaken and bringing the expedition back to civilization. That this was well and successfully accomplished is further tribute to the tremendous reserve of power and energy which her former outdoor life had built up in her.

Mary L. Jobe Akeley now stands at the top of her chosen field and gives freely and unstintingly of her wealth of outdoor knowledge to the modern girls. She knows that in the present day there is no attribute which will be of greater value to them than a well-founded fund of energy to meet modern emergencies, built on the foundation of sturdy bodies nurtured in outdoor life.

ARREST 3 AUTOISTS

off the road by a car which did not stop.

FIND BOOZE IN CAR
While Deputy Porter, Loring Evans and Jack Jones from the Clifton garage were examining the wreckage of the Ford, another motorist told them the road further east was blocked by the wreckage of two cars.

Going there, Deputy Porter said he found the three Columbus men, wandering about their Whippet coach and a Buick roadster bearing the West Virginia license, No. 5-944. No trace of the Buick's driver was found and the trio in the Columbus car declared, Deputy Porter said, that they knew nothing about him.

Searching the wrecked Whippet, Deputy Porter found three one-gallon jugs and five pint bottles of whiskey. He placed the three under arrest and after an argument put them in his car, deputizing Loring Evans to accompany him to jail.

START TO FIGHT
All was peaceful for several miles when the Columbus trio started at the same time to fight their captors. Evans was unarmed and Porter wouldn't use his gun and the unequal fight continued for three miles. At the Willard Justus farm on the Goosepond pike, Porter was forced to stop his car and devote more attention to subduing the prisoners.

At this time, Sheriff Davis, going to the scene of the wreck, arrived on the scene. When Ralph Chrysler was ordered into the sheriff's car, he struck at Davis and the battle became general. Ralph Chrysler finally agreed to get into the designated automobile after he had been knocked down by Davis, who broke his right hand when he connected with Chrysler's nose.

At the jail Dr. Howard Jones was called to dress Sheriff Davis' hand and the face injuries of Fiske who was badly cut in the collision. The two other prisoners were unharmed except for the bruises of battle. Fiske is said to have been driving the Whippet which is owned by Ervel Chrysler.

SEARCH IS ORDERED
Sheriff Davis searched the vicinity of the wreck Sunday for some trace of the Buick's driver, but without result. He ordered another search Monday when no word had been received from nor concerning the missing autoist.

The Columbus trio were to be arraigned Monday afternoon before Probate Judge E. A. Brown on six probable charges. These charges are drunkenness, driving while intoxicated, possessing liquor, transporting liquor, assaulting an officer and resisting arrest. The last two charges probably will not be filed, Sheriff Davis said Monday, declaring that his office takes the battles as part of the work.

Fish-Oil Ice Cream
Ice cream made from fish oil and sugar recently was an unexpected winter dish of Eskimos of Alaska. The odor was strong but the dish is said to have tasted better than it smelt. Eskimos caught great numbers of eulachin, a species of smelt which is sometimes called the candlefish because it contains so much oil. These they placed in holes lined with heated rocks, and after the fish were cooked they were placed in covered baskets on which the women trod with bare feet to extract the oil. During cold weather the oil has much the consistency of butter. To make the ice cream, the oil was melted and sugar and snow were added, then stirred in.

Ohio Sprinter World's Fastest Human

After equaling the world's record in the 100-yd. trials, shown above, at the National Collegiate championships at Chicago, George Simpson, Ohio State sprinting star, went out in the finals and set a mark of 9 and 4-10 seconds which is believed will be allowed and recognized as a new world's record. Other famous names had shared the honor before among whom were Charlie Paddock, Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, George Tolan of Michigan, but the Ohio star will stand by himself in the new record, the fastest human.

Device That Measures Temperature of Moon

Most modern observatories are equipped with instruments whereby the temperature of the moon can be measured. The temperature of the moon depends upon the amount of heat it receives, the amount it reflects, and its rate of radiation. It is easy to measure with some approximation the amount of heat the earth receives from the moon, but it is not easy to determine what part is reflected and what part radiated. When the moon passes into the earth's shadow so that the direct rays of the sun are cut off, then all the heat received from the moon is that radiated and this can be measured, and from the amount received and the rate at which it decreases as the eclipse continues, it is possible to determine approximately the rate at which the moon loses heat by radiation, and from this the temperature to which it has been raised. Observations show that the amount of heat received from the moon diminishes very rapidly after it passes into the earth's shadow. This indicates that its radiation is very rapid.

BRAMWELL BOOTH DIES IN LONDON

LONDON, June 17.—The world today mourned the death of General Bramwell Booth, 73, son of the founder of the Salvation army and until several months ago its leader.

The general had been in precarious health for some time but had been reported improving and his sudden relapse and death last night came as a severe shock.

His wife and family, with the exception of his daughter, Commissioner Mary, were at his bedside in the Booth home at Hadley Wood, near here, when the end came at about 9 o'clock last night.

Oddest Radio Station in Virginia Graveyard

There are many strange radio stations in the world, but one of the strangest, perhaps, is the station that is located in a graveyard. The redeeming feature of the whole thing is the fact that it is not a human but a ship's graveyard.

Anchored in the James river near Fort Eustis, Va. are some 200 ships of the Emergency Fleet corporation built for use in the time of the war and now of no use to the government, they are tied up waiting, sale, or death by decay. Tied up in 10 units of 20 ships each, they spread out over this historic river for some five miles.

When the high winds blow down the river the boats occasionally break away from their moorings and go drifting down the river, a menace to navigation. Also, when the high winds blow, the little land phone line that runs to Yorktown is carried away. It is in times like this that the radio station, which is located on the hatches of the fleet, comes into operation. A call is sent to the navy yard at Newport News and tugs are dispatched to return the refractory boat to the fold.

Even in calm weather the transmitter gets an occasional workout by transmitting messages received by phone from the Yorktown mine depot to the navy yard. Fort Eustis, near which this peculiar little station is located, is also the home base of the only railway artillery unit in the United States army.

Romance on Rocks?

A rumored rift in the lute—or whatever is the equivalent where fiddles are concerned—in the domestic affairs of Jascha Heifetz, noted violinist and his actress-wife, the former Florence Vidor, has been vehemently denied by her, although she admits there was some difference, which has been patched up, according to her secretary.

Honoring the Dead

Annual Decoration day is most enthusiastically observed by the Lower Yukon Indians. Late last autumn 15 families of Indians from Nulato and other villages met together to fulfill the custom of erecting houses over the graves of those who died during the year. The shelters of the old graves were given a fresh coat of brilliant paint. Many of the unique manilems have windows and floors and contain rugs and other articles that were used by the departed ones. Every western Alaska Indian tribe has a different method of protecting the spirit of departed ones.

DON'T PERMIT MIND TO BECOME GROOVED

Thinking Along One Line Causes "Ruts" in the Brain—Varied Reading Healthful. But First, Will Your Eyes Stand Strain?

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU will be going away for the Summer vacation pretty soon. Doubtless you will be doing a lot of reading. At least I hope you will.

DR. COPELAND.

I regard reading as one of the means of promoting health. A few days ago I talked with a Senator. He is a very serious minded man, and devotes his every energy to the good of the country. I asked him if he ever read anything except books and papers relating to government. He admitted that he rarely does. My suggestion to him was that a change in his reading material would aid his health.

Now you will ask me how in the world the reading a man does can have any effect on his physical welfare. I shall undertake to show you why I think it does have.

In a sense our mental processes are like a highway. If we think along one line all the time, we get a condition equivalent to ruts in the brain, like the ruts in a poor road.

You know how rough and uncomfortable a passage over such a road really is. If our thoughts are kept all the time in one groove it gives that part of the brain no chance to recuperate. The thinking highway grows rougher all the time.

Many a sleepless person will be lulled to slumber if he indulges in some sort of light reading. In my opinion modern novels have a real use. You may glean little from them, that is informative or uplifting. But they are diverting. They carry our thoughts over portions of the brain that are rarely used, and give the regular highway a chance to spring back into form.

Of course there are nobler uses to be made of reading. The libraries are filled with books that are instructive and enlightening. Such works should be our constant companions.

It is needless to say I did not start out to write a philosophical essay about books. What I intended to say is that before you go on your Summer vacation you should make sure that your eyes are in good condition. If you haven't had your vision tested for a long time, this is a good time to attend to the matter.

You have a lot of teeth, and if you are unfortunate enough to lose two or three it won't matter particularly. But you can't afford to take any chances with your two eyes.

It is surprising how many persons neglect their eyes. It is given to very few to have perfect sight. A good deal more than half the people in the world have defective vision. The defect may be so slight as to have no important bearing on distant vision. Objects across the street, or even a mile away, may seem distinct.

When it comes to near vision we are dealing with an entirely different condition. There must be accurate adjustment of the lens and muscles of the eye if reading and sewing are to be done comfortably. Don't be foolish about it. If you are told by an expert that glasses are required be sure to get them. It is far better to protect the eyes and guard them against strain than it is to acquire some ailment which may impair the vision. Many a case of eye strain has been followed by serious consequences. The time to prevent them is now. Have your eyes tested to find out for a certainty whether they are normal or not.

Texas' Beginnings

Texas won her independence from Mexico and became known as the "Republic of Texas" in 1836. In the years immediately following there were repeated invasions and massacres by the Mexicans, who never abandoned their claims to the Texas territory. They advanced three times as far as San Antonio, but in each case were repelled, statehood was offered to Texas, but the question of annexation brought up the difficulties of the slave question, which became the national issue of the Polk campaign. However, he won the Presidency by favoring the annexation of Texas. Before he took the oath of office, congress passed a joint resolution again offering statehood to Texas, which she accepted and the territory became a part of the United States in 1845.

Thinks He Has Special Reason for Complaint

The driver of a small car, parked in a crowded downtown section, stopped short and stared at the apparent nakedness of the machine. The spare tire was missing.

With a nonchalant shrug, he muttered something about "thieves will be thieves." And he stepped short again and stooped to pick up a wrench from the running board. His face grew crimson and the things he said were terms not generally employed by frequenters of social teas.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Stroller.

"A lot!" he snapped. "I don't mind these crooks stealing my tire but when they open my car and take my tools to do it with, that's too much!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

MACDONALD AND DAWES AGREED

LONDON, June 17.—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes arrived here from Forres, Scotland at 8.30 a.m. today in a highly jubilant mood after his momentous conference with Premier Ramsay MacDonald during which they informally agreed to call the world to join Britain and the United States in reducing naval armaments.

"My conversation with Premier MacDonald was exceedingly satisfying," he said. "You understand, of course, that I can say no more just now. I shall have something to say at the proper time."

CHURCH UNION MOVEMENTS

Some important movements looking toward union of religious denominations have been started recently, and more will be heard of them in the near future. The recent Presbyterian general assembly's department on church union and cooperation reported in favor of a complete union with all the bodies of the reformed faith and Presbyterian order. The Congregationalist and Christian denominations are considering union and several more important union projects are being advocated.

Some idealistic people cling to the belief that in due time all the denominations of the Protestant faith will unite into one, and some would go even farther and look forward hopefully to the time when all Christian bodies will become one. But such far-reaching plans are a long way in the future.

People like to associate with folks who think and act as they do. You can't force people to all join the same club, or the same lodge or move in the same social circle. It is equally difficult to induce them all to attend the same church. If they find themselves asked to attend some church where they do not feel at home, where they do not find people or ideas of a type to which they are accustomed, they prefer to stay at home.

Yet there should be a widespread movement for consolidation of churches. In many cases, the difference between these organizations is trifling and unimportant, and would soon disappear, if people were better acquainted.

If there are two churches in a locality where there should only be one, the result is to divide up the amount of money available for maintaining church services, also dividing up the time of the workers, and thus limiting the things that each one of these divided groups can do. Let us hope that the movement toward union of such churches will make rapid progress.

PRACTICAL AMERICAN BRAINS

An illustration of the practical way in which the American people tackle their problems, was given at the Paris reparations conference, through the work of Owen D. Young, one of the American representatives.

The practical mind never hitches itself absolutely fast to any theory. If one idea does not work, it tries something else. When Mr. Young found the European delegates were stalled by the wide divergence of their theories of reparations, he satisfied all concerned that they would better moderate their requirements rather than see the world continually upset by this controversy. That principle applied in this country would settle some of our difficulties.

Protect Guano Birds

Shipmasters carelessly blowing their foghorns, disturbing the guano birds nesting on the islands off the coast of Peru, are punished with a fine; and if it is discovered that their vessels approached within two miles of the islands, their boats are confiscated.

This new law was passed by the Peruvian government in a drastic campaign to protect the birds, which, as described in Popular Science Monthly, produce large quantities of guano, an excellent fertilizer. While guano is found in various places, the most valuable variety—containing from 13 to 14 per cent nitrogen and a like proportion of phosphoric acid—is exported from the Chincha and other islands near the Peruvian coast. These islands produce $1,000,000 worth of the fertilizer a year.

HORSE RUSTLERS USE NEW TRICKS

Hogs Help South Dakota Gang to Conceal Role of Thieves.

Pierre, S. D.—Horse stealing, or, to use the term of the West, "horse rustling," is no new thing, but an organized gang on the Cheyenne river Indian reservation, near the town of Dupree, developed a new method the last winter, which has resulted in the arrest of several whites and Indians, and a general search by the officers for the head of the organization, who disappeared after giving bond for appearance on a preliminary hearing.

The organization started operations by the development of a ranch for the raising of hogs, and a large herd was located on the place.

That was the stage setting, as the ranch became the hangout and central location of disposing of the stolen horses which were picked up all over the northwestern part of the state.

Fed Hogs on Horseflesh.

None of the horses so stolen were placed upon the market. They were driven to the central ranch, where they were killed for hog feed. All the animals were skinned, and the hides were trucked to towns several hundred miles from the scene of operation and sold.

As horses were running loose over the range through the winter months, the losses were not discovered until an attempt was made this spring by the owners to locate and bring home their ranging horses.

They could not be located and finally suspicion was centered on the hog ranch, which was operated by C. B. Tinsley. Investigation indicated the sale of many horse hides by Tinsley and the crowd which was known to hang about his place, both whites and Indians.

Traced by Horsehides.

These hides were traced, and while a number of them were found with brands cut out, others were found where the rustlers had not even taken the precaution to eliminate this method of tracing.

After the hides were located it did not take the stock associations which had interested themselves in the case very long to trace them back to the sellers. These in every case were found to be either Tinsley or some of his crowd.

Tinsley was arrested on the charge of larceny of horses, and waived examination. He gave bond for his appearance before the Circuit court and vanished.

Following the taking of Tinsley, several arrests have been made.

The stock associations believe that they have broken up one of the most extensive rustling gangs in the northwestern part of the state by their work and will do everything possible to get the leader.

Montanans Will Breed

Dogs to Kill Coyotes

LIVINGSTON, Mont.—Experiments in breeding that are hoped to result in a line of dogs that will be most efficient coyote hunters are being conducted by ranchers in this vicinity. Irish and Russian wolfhounds, greyhounds, crossbred staghounds and greyhounds have been showing the most ability in protection of sheep.

The dogs of the A. G. Dupuy ranch, seven miles up the Yellowstone river from here, have "brought in the scalps" of 17 coyotes and two bobcats this winter. One of the dogs came from the Amos Close pack of Lander, Wyo., and is reputed to have participated in 300 "kills" before being brought to the Dupuy ranch.

Many Stone Age Relics

Bar-Le-Duc.—A remarkable collection of objects of archeological interest has been discovered by workmen carting sand near the Ornan river. These objects dated from the Stone age to the Middle ages.

Two sharp piercing instruments in reindeer bone and stone weights perforated for fishing nets were the oldest. There were also many pieces of pottery of the Bronze age, an axe and a hatchet of the Iron age and a knife, fragments of vases and jars from the Gallo-Roman period and a iron sword of the Middle ages.

Hard of Hearing to Hold National Meet

Cleveland.—Chairmen of committees have been named and preparations are progressing for the national convention of the American Association for the Hard of Hearing here June 24-28. More than 600 delegates from all parts of the country are expected to attend. Devices will be installed in the meeting chamber to enable deaf persons to hear all proceedings.

THE TEST

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXXIV.
"EASY money!" Crystal thought, surprised to get three hundred, Adelina had only held out two.

"And don't ask for any more in a hurry," her mother wrote, "because Haines hasn't got it. Just be patient, and do the best you can and be a good girl. Don't take any money from McKevitt or any man, because if you do they will take advantage. You can't trust any of them. Mama is advising you for your own good."

Crystal's lip curled as she read, "I can take care of myself, thank you."

She hid the three crisp notes in a volume of Tennyson on the library table, and went to answer Ralph McKevitt's ring—one long and two short—at the studio door. Flora McCradle was riding home in the street car, in the midst of the five o'clock rush. Flora's stringy yellow hair was wet with perspiration—she had chased the car almost a block—and her nose was shiny. Every time the car stopped the bundles leaped in her arms, and a fat lady who had had garlic for lunch opened her mouth and said "Mercy!" breathing her garlicky breath right on Flora's neck.

"Damn!" Flora swore, hating the fat lady, and the men with newspapers and protruding feet, a solid wall of them along each side of the car, ostriches hiding, pretending they couldn't see the woman standing. "Damn all street cars, if I had any sense, I'd live downtown instead of getting half killed like this every night. . . I beg your pardon!"—the last to the fat lady who clutched her for support.

Flora was out of sorts anyway. One of the other papers had scooped her on a society engagement, and the city editor who hardly ever checked the society items, and never noticed when she scooped the others, had discovered it, and left a sarcastic note on her typewriter. So there was no use asking for a raise as she had planned. Not for a couple of weeks anyhow, until he had time to forget it.

"Damn men!" she thought again, glaring at the newspapers lined up before her, "they're all alike. Selfish pigs. No matter how we treat 'em, it's too good for them!" And she had another angry revulsion of feeling, remembering the well dressed pair who had nearly run over her in their smart yellow roadster as she was running for the car. . . Ralph McKevitt, and the Garroty girl.

"Yes, and Daphne sitting around home waiting for the phone to ring this very minute I suppose. I'll give her a talking to when I get home. She hasn't any more chance with that bozo than I have with the Prince of Wales!"

Daphne had grown much thinner in the last weeks. She looked more than ever like a Rossetti painting, with her straight black bang and her wistful gray eyes, dark and dreamy, in her small white face. "Twice as attractive as that hard-boiled Garroty girl!" Flora thought loyally. "Not that that ass McKevitt will ever see it. It's a good thing he was born with a gold spoon in his mouth, he hasn't ten year intelligence. One

Theoretical Dollar

The term "compensated" or "stabilized dollar" was coined by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale in his book, "Stabilizing the Dollar." It is a theoretical dollar having a constant purchasing power. The theory of the compensated dollar is to convert the present gold standard into a true commodity standard—that is, to standardize the dollar as a unit of purchasing power. Thus, there would be a gold dollar of constant purchasing power, with varying weight instead of a gold dollar of standard weight and varying purchasing power.

Cumbersome Old Vessels

Galileo was a name formerly given to a large kind of vessel with three masts and three or four decks, such as those used by the Spaniards in their commerce with South America to transport precious metals. They were large, clumsy, square-sterned vessels, having bulwarks three or four feet thick, all of which were so encumbered with topmasts and so overweighted in proportion to their draft of water that they could bear little canvas, even with smooth seas and light winds.

Poser

Tommy was always eager for knowledge, and one day while walking in the park with his father, he asked the name of a tree. "That's an elm tree," his father told him. "Why do they call it an elm?" "Oh, why do they call you 'Tommy'?" asked his father, impatiently. Tommy thought for a while. Then he said: "I don't know—why do they call me 'Tommy,' father?"

Slay Stone-Eating Germs

Chemical warfare is being waged on germs that are literally eating up the big buildings. Scores of organisms that eat stone and other substances have been discovered. Chemicals are sought that will slay the germs without destroying the materials. The germs open the pores in the surface, exposing the material to the destructive influence of the weather. Some bacteria cause erosion in the hardest marble in three weeks.

Will Try Open Again!

Walter Hagen has long been the most colorful and dramatic golfer of golfoid. American Open winner twice, British Open 4 times, the French, Belgian and many other important championships once or more, Hagen has captured the professional title five times in a row. Somehow ten years have passed since he won his last national open title. Maybe this year he can throw off the lux and come through first.

EXCEPTIONAL PICTURE

Marking a new milestone in screen entertainment, the much heralded talking picture, "Alibi," had its local premiere Sunday at the Cliftona Theater, and more than exceeded the expectations of capacity audiences.

"Alibi," a smashing, crashing story of love, life, laughter and crook-stalking would be unexcelled entertainment as a silent picture. Plus the dialogue, liting musical sequences and sounds as natural as if the action were actually taking place on the stage, it is superlative entertainment.

United Artists and Roland West, producer and director of this 100 per cent audible film special, have contributed the finest example yet offered in this new form of screen art. The actors—real ones!—speak their lines naturally, the gripping story is logically unfolded, and thrill after thrill for eye and ear holds spectators breathless as crooks, cops, lover and high-livers play their parts on the voice-endowed silversheet.

TALKING THRILLER

Sensational in form and content is Warner Bros.' "Lights of New York," first all-talking picture in the world, opened at the Grand Theater Sunday for a run of 2 days.

The story is tense and hair-raising in its portrayal of the grim adventures of two small town sweethearts who brave the Big Town.

A policeman is murdered in a rum raid and the proprietor of the cabaret where the girl dances, frames the country boy as the perpetrator of the deed. The shadow of the electric chair is over him when a jealous woman reveals the real murderer.

Helene Costello, Cullen Landis, Mary Carr and Gladys Brockwell head the all-star cast.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD'S CHILDREN—Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God.—Matthew 5:9.

PRAYER—Lord, we would believe in Thee and receive Thee, and so, become children of God and establish peace on earth.

CHURCH UNION MOVEMENTS

Some important movements looking toward union of religious denominations have been started recently, and more will be heard of them in the near future. The recent Presbyterian general assembly's department on church union and cooperation reported in favor of a complete union with all the bodies of the reformed faith and Presbyterian order. The Congregationalist and Christian denominations are considering union and several more important union products are being advocated.

Some idealistic people cling to the belief that in due time all the denominations of the Protestant faith will unite into one, and some would go even farther and look forward hopefully to the time when all Christian bodies will become one. But such far-reaching plans are a long way in the future.

People like to associate with folks who think and act as they do. You can't force people to all join the same club or the same lodge or move in the same social circle. It is equally difficult to induce them all to attend the same church. If they find themselves asked to attend some church where they do not feel at home, where they do not find people or ideas of a type to which they are accustomed, they prefer to stay at home.

Yet there should be a widespread movement for consolidation of churches. In many cases, the difference between these organizations is trifling and unimportant, and would soon disappear, if people were better acquainted.

If there are two churches in a locality where there should only be one, the result is to divide up the amount of money available for maintaining church services, also dividing up the time of the workers, and thus limiting the things that each one of these divided groups can do. Let us hope that the movement toward union of such churches will make rapid progress.

PRACTICAL AMERICAN BRAINS

An illustration of the practical way in which the American people tackle their problems, was given at the Paris reparations conference, through the work of Owen D. Young, one of the American representatives.

The practical mind never hitches itself absolutely fast to any theory. If one idea does not work, it tries something else. When Mr. Young found the European delegates stalled by the wide divergence of their theories of reparations, he satisfied all concerned that they would better moderate their requirements rather than see the world continually upset by this controversy. That principle applied in this country would settle some of our difficulties.

Protect Guano Birds

Shipmasters carelessly blowing their foghorns, disturbing the guano birds nesting on the islands off the coast of Peru, are punished with a fine; and if it is discovered that their vessels approached within two miles of the islands, their boats are confiscated.

This new law was passed by the Peruvian government in a drastic campaign to protect the birds which, as described in Popular Science Monthly, produce large quantities of guano, an excellent fertilizer. While guano is found in various places, the most valuable variety—containing from 13 to 14 per cent nitrogen and a like proportion of phosphoric acid—is exported from the Chincha and other islands near the Peruvian coast. These islands produce $1,000,000 worth of the fertilizer a year.

HORSE RUSTLERS USE NEW TRICKS

Hogs Help South Dakota Gang to Conceal Role of Thieves.

Pierre, S. D.—Horse stealing, or, to use the term of the West, "horse rustling," is no new thing, but an organized gang on the Cheyenne river Indian reservation, near the town of Dupree, developed a new method the last winter, which has resulted in the arrest of several whites and Indians, and a general search by the officers for the head of the organization, who disappeared after giving bond for appearance on a preliminary hearing.

The organization started operations by the development of a ranch for the raising of hogs, and a large herd was located on the place.

That was the stage setting, as the ranch became the hangout and central location of disposing of the stolen horses which were picked up all over the northwestern part of the state.

Fed Hogs on Horseflesh. None of the horses so stolen were placed upon the market. They were driven to the central ranch, where they were killed for hog feed. All the animals were skinned, and the hides were trucked to towns several hundred miles from the scene of operation and sold.

As horses were running loose over the range through the winter months the losses were not discovered until an attempt was made this spring by the owners to locate and bring home their ranging horses.

They could not be located and finally suspicion was centered on the hog ranch, which was operated by C. B. Tinsley. Investigation indicated the sale of many horse hides by Tinsley and the crowd which was known to hang about his place, both whites and Indians.

Traced by Horseflesh. These hides were traced, and while a number of them were found with brands cut out, others were found where the rustlers had not even taken the precaution to eliminate this method of tracing.

After the hides were located it did not take the stock associations which had interested themselves in the case very long to trace them back to the sellers. These in every case were found to be either Tinsley or some of his crowd. Tinsley was arrested on the charge of larceny of horses, and waived examination. He gave bond for his appearance before the Circuit court and vanished.

Following the taking of Tinsley, several arrests have been made. The stock associations believe that they have broken up one of the most extensive rustling gangs in the northwestern part of the state by their work and will do everything possible to get the leader.

Montanans Will Breed Dogs to Kill Coyotes

Livingston, Mont.—Experiments in breeding that are hoped to result in a line of dogs that will be most efficient coyote hunters are being conducted by ranchers in this vicinity. Irish and Russian wolfhounds, greyhounds, crossbred staghounds and greyhounds have been showing the most ability in protection of sheep.

Five dogs of the A. G. Deputy ranch, seven miles up the Yellowstone river from here, have "brought in the scalps" of 17 coyotes and two bobcats this winter. One of the dogs came from the Ames (close pack of Lander, Wyo., and is reputed to have participated in 300 "kills" before being brought to the Deputy ranch.

French Laborers Find Many Stone Age Relics

Bar-Le-Duc—A remarkable collection of objects of archeological interest has been discovered by workmen cutting sand near the Ormian river. These objects dated from the Stone Age to the Middle Ages.

Two sharp piercing instruments in reindeer bone and stone weights perforated for fishing nets were the oldest. There were also many pieces of pottery of the Bronze age, an axe and a hatchet of Marnean epoch in Gaul with bits of pottery and an iron knife, fragments of vases and jars from the Gallo-Roman period and a lion sword of the Middle Ages.

Tough on Trudie

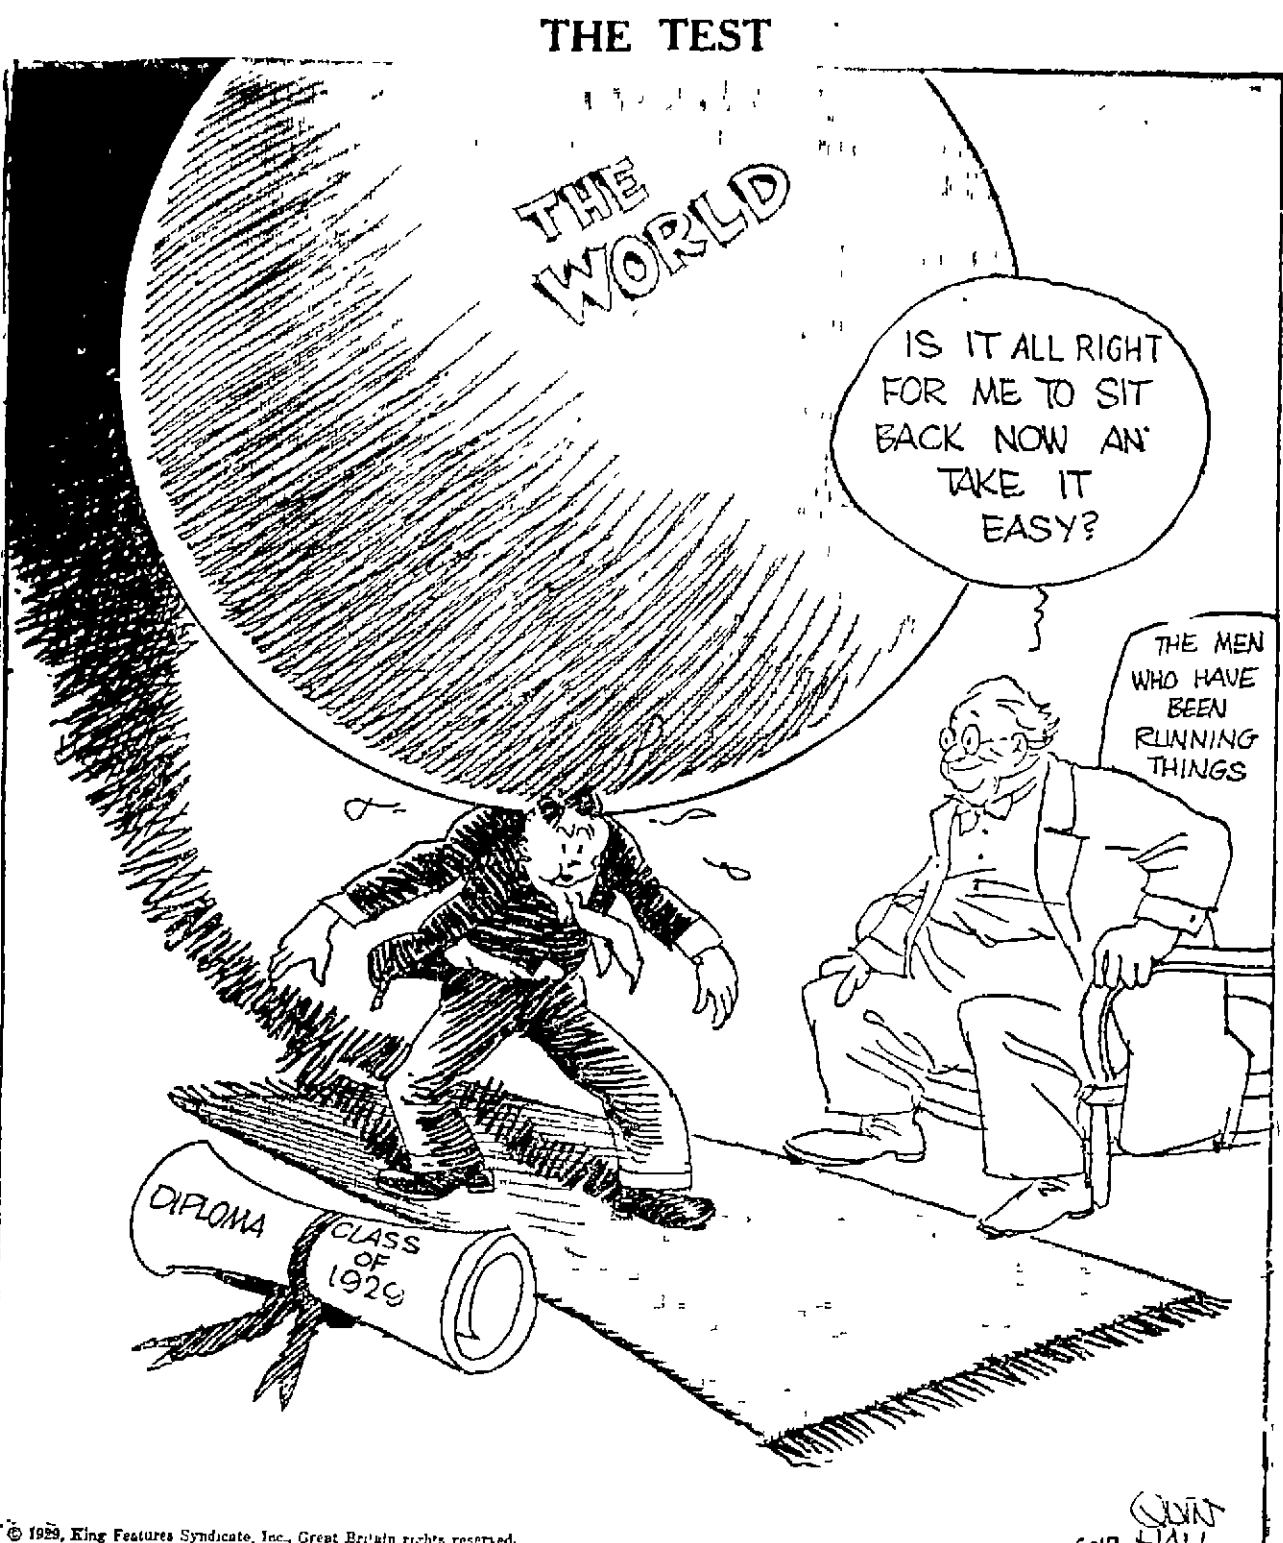

New York—The worst part of Gertrude Ederle's deafness, as she explains it, is that she can't hear the nice things my beau says to me unless he shouts. So we have absolutely no privacy. She is to avoid swimming and try airplane flights in an effort for a cure.

Hard of Hearing to Hold National Meet

Cleveland—Chairmen of committees have been named and preparations are being made for a national convention of the American Association of the Deaf to be held at the Hotel Huron here June 21-23.

More than 600 delegates from all parts of the country are expected to attend. Deaf will be installed in the meeting and order to enable deaf persons to hear all proceedings.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"EASY money?" Crystal thought, surprised to get three hundred, Adeline had only held out two.

"And don't ask for any more in a hurry," her mother wrote, "because Haines hasn't got it. Just be patient, and do the best you can and be a good girl. Don't take any money from McKevitt or any man, because if you do they will take advantage. You can't trust any of them. Mamma is advising you for your own good."

Crystal's lip curled as she read. "I can take care of myself, thank you!" She hid the three crisp notes in a volume of Tennessee in the library, and went to answer Ralph McKevitt's ring—one long and two short—at the studio door. Flora McCradle was riding home in the street car, in the midst of the five o'clock rush. Flora's stringy yellow hair was wet with perspiration—she had chased the car almost a block—and her nose was shiny. Every time she stopped the bundles leaped in her arms, and a fat lady who had had garlic for lunch opened her mouth and said "Merrey" breathing her garlicky breath right on Flora's neck.

"Damn!" Flora swore, hating the fat lady, and the men with newspapers and protruding feet, a solid wall of them along each side of the car, ostriches hiding, pretending they couldn't see the woman standing. "Damn all street cars, if I had any sense, I'd live downtown instead of getting half killed like this every night. I beg your pardon!"—the last to the fat lady who clutched her for support.

Flora was out of sorts anyway. One of the other papers had scooped her on a society engagement, and the city editor who hardly ever checked the society items, and never noticed when she scooped the others, had discovered it, and left a sarcastic note on her typewriter. So there was no use asking for a raise as she had planned. Not for a couple of weeks anyhow, until he had time to forget it.

"Damn men!" she thought again, glaring at the newspapers lined up before her, "they're all alike. Selfish pigs. No matter how we treat 'em, it's too good for them!" And she had another angry retort on her tongue when she saw the well-dressed man who had nearly run over her in their smart yellow roadster as she was running for the car. . . . Ralph McKevitt, and the Garroty girl.

"Yes, and Daphne sitting around home waiting for the phone to ring this very minute I suppose. I'll give her a talking to when I get home. She hasn't any more chance with that hog than I have with the Prince of Wales."

Daphne had grown much thinner in the last weeks. She looked more than ever like a skeleton painting, with her "black hang and her awful gray eyes, dark and gleaming, in a small white face. "Twice as attractive as that hard-boiled Garroty girl, Flora thought again. "Not that I hate McKevitt," she said, "but it's a good thing he was a man with a gold spoon in his mouth, he hasn't been seen since he was in the city."

And carrying the hot coffee up to Flora's room she said, "Do you know, Flora, I don't believe I'd move even if I could afford to now! I'd sort of hate to go away from Mamma Hinkle, and Viola."

Flora grinned. "Saw—good as gold. Still it wouldn't take me long to pack if I had any place better to go. You're too soft-hearted, Daphne. Here, you help yourself to the potato salad, while I stand up the most perfect I could have without let me keep myself. . . . I wouldn't mind having an apartment like the Garroty girl's."

Will Try Open 'Again'

Walter Hagen has long been the most colorful and dramatic golfer of golfdom. American Open winner twice, British Open 4 times, the French, Belgian and many other important championships once or more, Hagen has captured the professional title five times in a row. Somehow ten years have passed since he won his last national open title. Maybe this year he can throw off the tinx and come through first.

Honoring the Dead

Annual Decoration day is most enthusiastically observed by the Lower Yukon Indians. Late last autumn 15 families of Indians from Nulato and other villages met together to fulfill the custom of erecting houses over the graves of those who died during the year. The shelters of the old graves were given a fresh coat of brilliant paint. Many of the unique museums have windows and doors and contain rugs and other articles that were used by the departed ones. Every western Alaska Indian tribe has a different method of protecting the spirit of departed ones.

Last British Invasion

French Practical Joke?

The last invasion of England by an armed enemy force was on February 22, 1707, when a French army of 1,400 men, under General Tate landed at Fishguard with an idea apparently of conquering Wales. The whole affair proved farcical. Lord Cawdor hastily gathered to gether the local militia, and hundreds of women, dressed in the national costume, red mantles and beaver hats, accompanied their men folk, whereupon the invaders concluding that large reinforcements had reached Fishguard, hastened to make unconditional surrender. Tate was an American, many of his officers were Irish, and more than half his men were convicts released to help to equip the expedition. There were not wanting cynics, who declared that the French government had planned the whole affair with the sole idea of getting 1,400 incorrigible ruffians boarded and lodged at the expense of the British.

DON'T PERMIT MIND TO BECOME GROOVED

Thinking Along One Line Causes "Ruts" in the Brain—Varied Reading Healthful. But First, Will Your Eyes Stand Strain?

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU will be going away for the summer vacation pretty soon. Doubtless you will be doing a lot of reading. At least I hope you will.

I regard reading as one of the means of promoting health. A few days ago I talked with a Senator. He is a very serious minded man, and devotes his every energy to the good of the country. I asked him if he ever read anything except books and papers relating to government. He admitted that he rarely does. My suggestion to him was that a change in his reading material would aid his health.

Now you will ask me how in the world the reading a man does can have any effect on his physical welfare. I shall undertake to show you why I think it does have.

In a sense our mental processes are like a highway. If we think along one line all the time, we get a condition equivalent to ruts in the brain, like the ruts in a poor road.

You know how rough and uncomfortable a passage over such a road really is. If our thoughts are kept all the time in one groove, it gives that part of the brain no chance to recuperate. The thinking highway grows rougher all the time.

Many a sleepless person will be lulled to slumber if he indulges in some sort of light reading. In my opinion modern novels have a real use. You may learn little from them that is informative or uplifting. But they are diverting. They carry our thoughts over portions of the brain that are rarely used, and give the regular highway a chance to spring back into form.

Of course, there are noisier uses to be made of reading. The libraries are filled with books that are instructive and enlightening. Such works should be our constant companions.

It is needless to say I did not start out to write a philosophical essay about books. What I intended to say is that before you go on your Summer vacation you should make sure that your eyes are in good condition. If you haven't had your vision tested for a long time, this is a good time to attend to the matter.

You have a lot of teeth, and if you are unfortunate enough to lose two or three it won't matter particularly. But you can't afford to take any chances with your two eyes.

It is surprising how many persons neglect their eyes. It is given to very few to have perfect sight. A good deal more than half the people in the world have defective vision. The defect may be so slight as to have no important bearing on distant vision. Objects across the street, or even a mile away, may seem distinct.

When it comes to near vision we are dealing with an entirely different condition. There must be accurate adjustment of the lens and muscles of the eye if reading and sewing are to be done comfortably. Don't be foolish about it. If you are told by an expert that glasses are required be sure to get them. It is far better to protect the eyes and guard them against disease than it is to acquire some ailment which may impair the vision. Many a case of eye strain has been followed by serious consequences. The time to prevent them is now. Have your eyes tested to find out for a certainty whether they are normal or not.

THINKS HE HAS SPECIAL Reason for Complaint

The driver of a small car, parked in a crowded downtown section, stopped short and stared at the apparent nakedness of the machine. The spare tire was missing.

With a nonchalant shrug, he muttered something about "thieves will be thieves" and began to climb into the machine. But he stopped short again and stooped to pick up a wrench from the running board. His face grew crimson and the things he said were terms not generally employed by frequenters of social teas.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Stroller.

"A lot!" he snapped. "I don't mind these crooks stealing my tire but when they open my car and take my tools to do it with, that's too much!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

MACDONALD AND DAWES AGREED

LONDON, June 17.—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes arrived here from Forres, Scotland at 8:30 a.m. today in a highly jubilant mood after his momentous conference with Premier Ramsay MacDonald during which they informally agreed to call the world to join Britain and the United States in reducing naval armaments.

"My conversation with Premier MacDonald was exceedingly satisfying," he said. "You understand, of course, that I can say no more just now. I shall have something to say at the proper time."

Miss Mary Hurst Married Saturday At Country Home

Pink and blue, the colors of Beta Theta Pi, supplied the motif for decorations Saturday afternoon, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hurst of Williamsport, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Kathryn, to Mr. Arthur Manly Vlerebome, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Vlerebome of Lancaster. Large quantities of palms and ferns were in arrangement to form a setting for the beautiful pink roses and blue leuphodium. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, of the Methodist church of Williamsport, before the large fireplace, nearly hidden by palms and ferns, and with large urns on either side, filled with roses and delphinium. Tall, white cathedral candles burned on the mantle, in branched vandelabra.

Before the ceremony Miss Helen G. Betts of Williamsport, played Liza's Liebesträume, and Mrs. J. Brona Johnson sang "At Dawning." At four o'clock the bridegroom, and his best man, Harry A. Hurst, brother of the bride, entered from a side room, with the officiating minister. The maid of honor, Miss Laura McGhee, of Williamsport, next walked into the room and to the altar. She was followed by the bride, on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, in the ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal church.

After the wedding vows had been exchanged, Mrs. Johnson sang "O, Perfect Love."

Miss McGhee, the maid of honor, wore a gown, designed with a pink silk bodice, and tulle skirt, longer in the back and gradually shading from shell pink to deep rose. The streamers from a tulle bow on her shoulder extended to the floor. She wore a pink picture hat and satin shoes, matching her dress. Her bouquet was of pink roses, delphinium and lilies of the valley. Her bracelet was a gift of the bride.

Miss Hurst's bridal gown was of decided deep cream bridal satin with a low cut waist line, shirred in front, and fashioned with long, tight sleeves. The skirt, ankle length in front, falling in scalloped, gradually extended into a train in the back. The veil was of tulle, longer than the train and scalloped on the sides and end. The bride's face was framed on each side of the veil with orange blossoms, half a century old. Her cream pumps were adorned with a sprig of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and orchids. The dress was designed especially for the bride by her cousin, Miss Helen R. Jones, modiste of Chillicothe.

Following the ceremony the wedding reception was enjoyed by the 60 guests who were members of the immediate families and a few friends. At the bride's table, the wedding cake, occupied the center and was enwreathed by roses, maiden's hair fern and honey suckle. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Vlerebome left for an eastern trip taking them through Washington D. C., Atlantic City, and southern Canada. They will return the first of July and will be at home after July 7, in Lancaster. For traveling the bride wore a tan and brown ensemble, a brown hat of felt and straw, a mink choker and water snake shoes and bag.

Mr. Vlerebome is associated with his father in the wholesale grocery business in Lancaster. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, in the class of 1926 and affiliated with Beta Pi fraternity. He was formerly of Circleville.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding and the reception which followed were: Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Manly, Miss Helen Manly, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Harp, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Manly, Miss Effie L. Anderson, Miss Madelyn Howard, and Mrs. L. J. Hurst of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Orr, Miss Helen R. Jones, Miss Florence E. Hess of Chillicothe, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hurst and Mr. Robert Hurst of Clarksburg; Mr. William D. Radcliffe, Mr. Dwight Kane of Delaware; Mrs. W. C. Vlerebome, of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. YOUTHS PAROLED ON GUILTY PLEAS

Russell Clevenger and Clark Stevens, indicted by the April grand jury on charges of burglary and larceny in connection with the robbery of the Ed Caskey restaurant on S. Washington-st, changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty before Judge J. W. Adkins Saturday.

They were placed on parole by Judge Adkins who warned them that any infraction of their paroles will make reformatory sentences mandatory. Attorney George Adkins represented Clevenger and Max Seyfert defended Stevens.

One can hardly see any connection between hoop skirts and the electrical industry, but one may be traced, strangely enough, which took place in the early days of the electrical development. The first cables were not insulated satisfactorily till Walter T. Glover, an Englishman who braided steel hoops with cotton, had an inspiration. Crinolines were going out, so was his business. So he used his machinery for insulating copper wire with cotton braid, and he soon had no cause to regret the passing of the crinoline.

Tamed Ground Squirrel

Makes Good as Mouse

A golden-mantled ground squirrel tamed by rangers at the Dunraven Park station, in Yellowstone National park, not only made an excellent pet, but also took upon him self the duties of mouse. At first considerable local comment was caused by the fact that that squirrel, known as Chippie, had caught a mouse, but Ernest Thompson, Station-well-known naturalist, stated that this species of squirrel, which is really a rodent, is in the habit of catching field mice. Therefore the step to catching a mouse in doors was not a long one for Chippie.

Chippie made a great hit with the Dunraven rangers. "Chippie has proven quite a bit of company to me," said one of them. "He will come when I call him if he is within hearing distance. He shows no fear of me at all unless I make a sudden movement."

He is as jealous as can be, and will not allow me to feed another squirrel at all. He will chase them out of my hand, then sit up there and chatter at them to let them know their place." Kansas City Star's Science Service.

She was followed by the bride, on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, in the ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal church.

After the wedding vows had been exchanged, Mrs. Johnson sang "O, Perfect Love."

Miss McGhee, the maid of honor wore a gown, designed with a pink silk bodice, and tulle skirt, longer in the back and gradually shading from shell pink to deep rose. The streamers from a tulle bow on her shoulder extended to the floor. She wore a pink picture hat and satin shoes, matching her dress. Her bouquet was of pink roses, delphinium and lilies of the valley. Her bracelet was a gift of the bride.

Miss Hurst's bridal gown was of decided deep cream bridal satin with a low cut waist line, shirred in front, and fashioned with long, tight sleeves. The skirt, ankle length in front, falling in scallops, gradually extended into a train in the back. The veil was of tulle, longer than the train and scalloped on the sides and end. The bride's face was framed on each side of the veil with orange blossoms, half a century old. Her cream pumps were adorned with a sprig of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and orchids. The dress was designed especially for the bride by her cousin, Miss Helen R. Jones, modiste of Chillicothe.

Following the ceremony the wedding reception was enjoyed by the 60 guests who were members of the immediate families and a few friends. At the bride's table, the wedding cake, occupied the center and was enwreathed by roses, maiden's hair fern and honey suckle. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Vlerebome left for an eastern trip taking them through Washington D. C., Atlantic City, and southern Canada. They will return the first of July and will be at home after July 7, in Lancaster. For traveling the bride wore a tan and brown ensemble, a brown hat of felt and straw, a mink choker and water snake shoes and bag.

Mr. Vlerebome is associated with his father in the wholesale grocery business in Lancaster. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, in the class of 1926 and affiliated with Beta Pi fraternity. He was formerly of Circleville.

Roman Bridges Excite Wonder of Engineers

Among the notable bridge-building achievements of history are those constructed in the days of the Roman empire, says a writer in the Detroit News. Some of them still are in use, to the amazement of engineers, while others stand in broken majesty, the results of earthquakes or of purposed human destruction, for the delight and wonder of all beholders.

The two bridges, which lead from the Forum side of Rome to the island in the Tiber and on to the Trastevere, or St. Peter's side, were built in the Second century, B. C. They have been used very much more than the Apollon Way viaduct. They have stood there against frequent floods and constant usage these 2,000 years and they bid fair to keep on standing. The fine bridge across the Tiber, north of Rome, built to carry the Flaminian way northward, is another good example of a bridge more than 2,000 years old, which has seen steady and hard use and still appears as good as ever.

Oh, so white!

CLEAN, white clothes. They were washed. They were scrubbed. They were rinsed. But not in hard water. For hard water mixes with the soap and forms scum. The scum gets into the fabric. No, these clothes were not washed in hard water.

Soft water cleaned these clothes. It was hard water at first, but Melo was added. What a cleaner Melo made that water, with or without soap! How clean and white the clothes were! How much more effective the soap was! Get a can of Melo today at your grocer's.

YOUTHS PAROLED ON GUILTY PLEAS

Russell Clevenger and Clark Stevens, indicted by the April grand jury on charges of burglary and larceny in connection with the robbery of the Ed Caskey restaurant on S. Washington-st, changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty before Judge J. W. Adkins Saturday.

They were placed on parole by Judge Adkins who warned them that any infraction of their paroles will make reformatory sentences mandatory. Attorney George Adkins represented Clevenger and Max Seyfert defended Stevens.

One can hardly see any connection between hoop skirts and the electrical industry, but one may be traced, strangely enough, which took place in the early days of the electrical development. The first cables were not insulated satisfactorily till Walter T. Glover, an Englishman who braided steel hoops with cotton, had an inspiration. Crinolines were going out, so was his business. So he used his machinery for insulating copper wire with cotton braid, and he soon had no cause to regret the passing of the crinoline.

Tamed Ground Squirrel Makes Good as Mouser

A golden-mantled ground squirrel tamed by rangers at the Dunraven Pass station, in Yellowstone National park, not only made an excellent pet, but also took upon him self the duties of mouser. At first considerable local comment was caused by the fact that this squirrel, known as Chipple, had caught a mouse, but Ernest Thompson, station warden, explained that Chipple is really a rodent, is in the habit of catching field mice. Therefore the step to catching a mouse in doors was not a long one for Chipple.

Chipple made a great hit with the Dunraven rangers. "Chipple has proven quite a bit of company to me," said one of them. "He will come when I call him if he is within hearing distance. He shows no fear of me at all unless I make a sudden movement."

He is as jealous as can be, and will not allow me to feed another squirrel at all. He will chase them out of my hand, then sit up there and chatter at them to let them know their place.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.
